Dear Jewell —

Thanks for another long newsy letter - I think if they were all combined it would be an interesting account of the lives, customs, and make-up of the people of Tenn. You might call it the "Hillbilly," the "Tennessean" or "Ridge-Runners" - The idea, if used, will cost you one extra letter per week, and an additional sum of not less than 30¢ per month nor more than 50¢. Take it or leave it - the money is for postage and handling. (Tut, tut! - what a brainsterm that was!)

I've been playing a game which you win or lose by a throw of two little cubes called dice - or gallopin' dominos. But, no, I wasn't gambling. The game is Monopoly - if, during the course of the game, the dice direct you to a hotel visit on the Boardwalk, the owner collects (from you) $2000.⁰⁰ Mighty easy to lose sometimes - and by the same token, easy to win. It all depends on the dice which are the most unpredictable things in the world, unless it be the Russian Front - or, unfortunately enough, my possibilities of getting a furlough. But we won't discuss that.

With nothing to say, I can only close. So long til next time.

Love,
Bill
